Time management has been my problem ever since I was in my junior years. Usually, I procrastinate on things and ended up not getting it done. Now, I was about to lose my job because of not using my time wisely and failing to set a schedule. This has been a wake up call for me. I find so many helpful tips on this guide. There are 10 suggestions I could try to make myself proficient without freaking out in spite of the noisy surrounding I have. Contrary to my belief, multitasking is not a smart thing to do as it may lessen one's efficiency.

An excellent guide for beginners in time management!

This is a great book to read, to the point, and helpful. The most important tip to take away from it is a matrix TO DO list. Focus on the important things, don't drown in the every-day little things. Still highly recommended by me, especially considering how little time it takes to read. This is a resource I intend to keep around for a long time.
